Ordi

Ordi is a sake cup made of high-purity tin, utilizing the traditional casting techniques of Takaoka-shi, a renowned metal craft town with a history spanning over 400 years. These cups are manufactured using a method called casting, where molten metal is poured into a mould and left to solidify. Tin is said to enhance water retention and contribute to a mellower taste, which is why it has been extensively used in Japan as a material for food and drink vessels.

SHIZUKU

SHIZUKU is a high purity tin cast sake cup manufactured using the casting techniques of Takaoka-shi, a metal craft town with a history of over 400 years. Tin is said to improve water retention and mellow the taste, and has long been used as a food and drink vessel in Japan. This series of drinking vessels has both artistic and practical characteristics.

SHIZUKU

This series has a unique bottom design, which is inspired by the activity of the drops, shizuku, that create stalactites. It is said that limestone caves form slowly over thousands or tens of thousands of years. Even in today's fast-paced world, where time is accelerating at a dizzying pace, nature continues to tick away at an everlasting pace. We have incorporated the nature pace into the sake cups in the hope that you will feel yourself in harmony with nature while drinking your sake.

TRAVEL CHOCO

TRAVEL CHOCO is an asymmetrical tin sake cup with the opening gradually changing from narrow to wide. The shapes of the opening (brim) matters when it comes to the flavour and aroma of sake. When the opening is small, a refreshing taste; for large openings, the richness flows through. This unique shaped sake cup allows you to enjoy the different tastes of sake by changing the position of the opening while drinking.

TRAVEL CHOCO

The unique shaped cup allows you to choose different openings, which changes the amount of alcohol entering the mouth, where it falls on the tongue, the speed at which it flows and the way the aroma develops. Those factors bring the same alcoholic beverage to change in flavour. You can also enjoy the aroma and flavour with wine, cold coffee or tea, as well as sake.
